When I Look Into Her Eyes at Dawn

A Simple Life

Preface

These seven poems are contained in a simple form of three couplets and one concluding line. Sort of a half-sonnet. The form was discovered inadvertently during the capture of Omniverse, and subsequently developed through the other poems collected here.

Love is the substance of creation and we are all intimately connected to it, whether we realize it or not. Love is the Sun radiating Life, and at our core we are all radiations of Love in this Life. Sometimes that Love is beclouded by our human fears, but it always shines – we must only allow it to be bright by clearing the clouds.

A high manifestation of this Love is the bonding of two souls in bliss, and here we celebrate the joys when two kindred spirits dream and kiss . . .

Let us commune now as kindred spirits and share all the joys of breathing -- Let us imagine and inspire and laugh and play and make real all the love we're dreaming.

For all the Muses of myriad dreams

Omniverse

We are each a universe within An Omniverse made entirely of Love.

Each moment now spawns new parallel universes we choose.

There is no past and future, only all universes happening now.

This moment is all there is – it's Love.

A Glimpse of Heaven

I had a glimpse of heaven today, and we both were there
And all our loved ones gathered now from past and future.

Just a moment that seemed forever that we shared.
Now I brought this back with me, a gift of always loving.

Always open, true with trust, the connection Frees our light, the brightness of our souls now shining

On this world, spreading love through every universe.

In a Parallel Universe Not Far from Here

She asked me to stay tonight and we shared a million magic moments as the walls came down. We never looked back, miracles manifested, abundance poured into our lives.

From those moments forward every night a happy ending and every dawn refreshed a waking dream.

Quantum Leap to Higher Love

In that parallel universe not far from here where she is laying here beside me – hearts beating a peaceful tune we hear the silent music and our chakras be dancing in the light, each touch a clear spark of fire – we just let go, we're free.

We take the quantum leap to higher love.

That Higher Love

That higher love, exquisite vibration, perfectly in tune, no need to talk – communing we feel a constant warm stream of energy, the magic, our auras draw us ever higher, closer -- our magnetic molecules mingle in the moment, the forever now.

Entwined naked every night, we share our lucid dreams
Through the astral timeless realms on lifted beams and awoken by the Sun within shining on the world.

When I Look Into Her Eyes at Dawn

When I look into her eyes at dawn new universes awaken.

Our souls' ever lifting into sky-sized realms beyond the conscious mind upward to heavenly elation

Even while our soles connect with Earth,
Each moment a new creation, rebirth –

Two beings dancing through a soulful murmuration.

A Simple Life

Berry bushes scattered through the hillside, Fountains trickle from wellsprings, health and garden thrives.

We live out these Earthly years of contented peace, just being -- like people of the future, calm, enlightened. She spreads love barefoot in a sundress feeding the birds, inviting faeries to the garden, and the poet flows soaring words from the Love infused in every breath,

And the myriad of dreams that launched in the bliss of a moment's touch . . .
